Rolling 12-month performance

Source: Bellevue Asset Management, 30.09.2020; all figures in USD %, total return / BVI-methodology
Past performance is not a reliable indicator of future results and can be misleading. As the subfund is denominated in a currency that may differ than an investor's base currency, changes in the rate of exchange may have an adverse effect on prices and incomes. Performance is shown net of fees and expenses for the relevant share class over the reference period. All performance figures reflect the reinvestment of dividends and do not take into account the commissions and costs incurred on the issue and redemption of shares, if any. Individual costs are not taken into account and would have a negative impact on the performance. With an investment amount of EUR 1,000 over an investment period of five years, the investment result in the first year would be reduced by the front-end load of up to EUR 50 (5%) as well as by additional individual custody charges. In subsequent years, the investment result would also be reduced by the individual custody account costs incurred. The reference benchmark of this class is used for performance comparison purposes only (dividend reinvested). No benchmark is directly identical to a subfund, thus the performance of a benchmark is not a reliable indicator of future performance of the subfund it is compared to. There can be no assurance that a return will be achieved or that a substantial loss of capital will not be incurred.

Market review

Global stock markets gave up some ground in September. The upcoming US presidential election, an ongoing spike in new coronavirus cases and a slower pace of economic recovery led to profit-taking. The MSCI World Index backtracked about 3.5% in USD over the past month. Tech stocks were particularly weak after having made strong gains in previous months. Emerging-market stock markets performed slightly better due to the relatively lower weighting of the tech sector in this universe. Profit-taking was also observed in the healthcare sector, particularly in China. However, they are still in positive territory year-to-date with a gain of some 28%, which translates into an outperformance of almost 30% versus the MSCI Emerging Markets Index.

Dr. Reddy's announced an agreement with Celgene on Revlimid in which Celgene agreed to provide Dr. Reddy's with a license to sell "volume-limited" amounts of generic Revlimid in the US beginning on a confidential date after March 2022, subject to regulatory approval. Revlimid generates annual sales of USD 8 bn in the US alone and is used to treat patients with multiple myeloma and myelodysplastic syndromes.

Hugel, a South Korean manufacturer of Botox, made big gains during the month under review. It widened its share of its domestic market at the expense of its main rival Medy Tox, which plunged after Korean authorities revoked the marketing license of its Botox product. Another reason for Hugel's strong performance is the anticipation that the company's product will soon be granted marketing approval in China. Potential market growth there is 20-30%, compared with 10% in other countries. To date, only two Botox products have received marketing approval in the world's second largest market for Botox for cosmetic use. In view of the now lofty expectations and the significant jump in the stock's valuation multiples, we realized our profits and sold all Hugel shares in the portfolio.

After a very pleasing performance in preceding months, the shares of Hikma headed south over the past month. US FDA approval for the generic version of Advair, a drug for treating asthma and chronic lung diseases, is still outstanding. Hikma received a so-called Complete Response Letter from the FDA and must therefore submit additional data to supplement its original application. Approval of Hikma's generic product has now been pushed back to Q1 2021. Its shares lost about 5% on the day of this announcement. We took advantage of the weakness and added to our position in the stock.

Last month, Fosun, Top Glove, Zhifei, Junshi, Raia Drogasil and Apollo Hospitals were added to the portfolio and shareholdings of Lupine and Zai Lab were increased. Positions in Notre Dame, Aurobindo, Celltrion, Legend Bio and Wuxi AppTec were closed and positions in Sun Pharmaceutical, Dr. Reddy's, Innovent and Biocon were reduced.

Positioning & outlook

The fastest growing countries in the world can be found in emerging markets and they contain more than half of the world's population. Asian emerging markets are also forecast to account for more than 50% of global GDP by 2050. It is known that the economic growth model of countries shifts from manufacturing to the services sector as household incomes rise. A growing middle class fuels demand for modern medicine. Healthcare ranks increasingly high on their wish list. Billions are being invested in infrastructure, technology and research to modernize the healthcare systems in emerging market countries. This is giving a broader access to better healthcare. Meanwhile rapid population aging is also increasing demand for healthcare. In 30 years' time there will be 400 to 500 million people over 60 in China alone, and they will have a growing need for modern health services and medicines.

Outside Asia, Brazil's rapidly expanding private-sector healthcare market offers a range of interesting investment opportunities. The quality and long waiting times of the country's public health system are no longer acceptable to many higher-income Brazilian households and they are increasingly embracing these new services offered by private-sector healthcare providers. Hospital chains embedded in a fully-integrated ecosystem are but one example of the beneficiaries of this structural change. The fund serves as a defensive vehicle for capturing the above-average growth potential emerging markets offer. It invests in the entire healthcare system value chain, from hospital chains, drug developers and device manufacturers to medical research specialists and digital health companies.

Risk and return profile

The fund's objective is to generate an attractive return over a long-term horizon. It is therefore particularly suited to investors with an investment horizon of at least 5 years who want to diversify their portfolio with selective exposure to the healthcare sector in Emerging Markets and who are willing to accept the risks typically associated with stocks in this sector

low risk

1 | 2 | 3 | 4 | 5 | 6 | 7

This fund is assigned to category 6, as its share price fluctuates severely and both the risk of loss and the opportunities for profit can therefore be high. The calculation of the risk and earnings profile is based on simulated/historical data, which cannot be used as a reliable indication of the future risk profile. The classification of the fund may change in future and does not constitute a guarantee. Even a fund classed in category 1 does not constitute a completely risk-free investment. There can be no guarantee that a return will be achieved or that a substantial loss of capital will not be incurred. The overall risk exposure may have a strong impact on any return achieved by the fund or subfund. For further information please refer to the fund prospectus or KIID.

Liquidity risk

The fund may invest some of its assets in financial instruments that may in certain circumstances reach a relatively low level of liquidity, which can have an impact on the fund's liquidity.

Risk arising from the user of derivatives

The fund may conclude derivatives transactions. This increases opportunities, but also involves an increased risk of loss.

Currency risks

The fund may invest in assets denominated in a foreign currency. Changes in the rate of exchange may have an adverse effect on prices and incomes.

Operational risks and custody risks

The fund is subject to risks due to operational or human errors, which can arise at the investment company, the custodian bank, a custodian or other third parties.
